Jaye Fehrenbacher retires after 31 years

For Jaye Fehrenbacher, serving as Olney Central College's Program Advisor for Allied Health meant more than simply meeting students' academic needs. Her office was always open to students who needed to talk. Whether they were facing struggles in the classroom or at home, Fehrenbacher was eager to provide the support and encouragement they needed.

"I got to work with the students one-on-one and I'm really going to miss them and the interaction we had," said Fehrenbacher, who retired July 29 after 31 years at OCC.

"There are so many students and success stories we've had over the years, but the students who stand out are the ones who overcame obstacles to complete their degrees. It really is exciting when they finish and you know you helped them to get through."

assisted are now employed across the country as nurse practitioners, directors of nursing, traveling nurses and home health-care personnel. Still others have gone on to become educators including Shirley Smithenry and Cheryl Dill, who now serve as instructors for the Illinois Eastern Community Colleges/Olney Central College Nursing Program.

Fehrenbacher joined OCC in 1980, splitting her time between the International Office and the Records Office before being named nursing program advisor in 1986.

Through the years, Fehrenbacher has witnessed several changes at the college. The most significant has been the introduction of new technology.

"I remember when we got the first computers and were learning how to use them," she said. "Basically, they just did data processing. I can also remember using the mimeograph machine before we got the copiers."

Fehrenbacher also has seen a shift in the nursing student population.

"Today more men are choosing to go into the program because there are so many opportunities," she said. "We also have more non-traditional students who are coming back to school and entering the nursing program."

Fehrenbacher has enjoyed working with OCC faculty and staff and will miss them.

"I've seen almost all of the faculty and staff that were here when I started

Amie Mayhall receives CCA designation

Olney Central College Medical Office instructor Amie Mayhall received her Certified Coding Associate designation in July.

Mayhall has spent more than a year completing a certified coding program through the American Health Information Management Association in preparation for OCC's new Medical Coding Associate Certificate, which begins this fall.

The CCA designation has been a nationally accepted standard of achievement in the health information management (HIM) field since 2002. The certification is awarded based upon job analysis standards as well as state-of-the-art test construction. Only around 8,000 people have attained the certification since its introduction.

The CCA is the only HIM credential worldwide currently accredited by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies (NCCA). The CCA credential distinguishes coders by exhibiting commitment and demonstrating coding competencies across all settings, including both hospitals and physician practices.

Mayhall said OCC's new Medical Coding Associate Certificate program prepares students to take the Certified Coding Associate exam/certification and to work as medical coding professionals. Obtaining the CCA designation is important, Mayhall said, because most employers in the coding field require certification to be considered for employment.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates a shortage of more than 50,000 qualified HIM and HIT workers by 2015.

If you would like to learn more about the Medical Coding Associate Certificate, contact Mayhall at 395-7777, ext. 2229, or send an email to mayhalla@iecc.edu.

Auditions set for 'The Sunshine Boys'

The Olney Central College Theatre will host auditions for its fall production of Neil Simon's "The Sunshine Boys" at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 28 and 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 29 in the Dr. John D. Stull Performing Arts Center.

Auditions will consist of a cold reading from the script. Parts are available for two women and five men.

The play focuses on Al Lewis and Willy Clark, a one-time vaudevillian comedy act. During their more than 40-year partnership, the two not only grew to hate each other, but didn't speak to one another off-stage throughout the final year of their act.

Following several years of estrangement, the duo reunites for a CBS special on the history of comedy.

Performances are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 21 and Saturday, Oct. 22. An afternoon show will begin at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 23.
