Music Department gets new saxophone

The Olney Central College Foundation recently provided funding for the OCC Music Department to purchase a new Yanagisawa baritone saxophone with a low A.

Director of Bands Suzanne Downes said the baritone saxophone is a welcome addition to the department and will complement the other instruments it has acquired in recent years with assistance from both the Foundation and the college. She noted this particular instrument came highly recommended.

Downes said the baritone saxophone is needed for OCC's ensembles to perform college-level literature. OCC's Concert Band and Jazz Ensemble as well as the Community Band will benefit from the purchase.

"The baritone saxophone fills out the bottom sounds and gives the gut punch needed in the jazz band setting," she added.

during its Winter Concert on Feb. 22-23.

"We are very thankful to the OCC Foundation. They have been very supportive and the students will greatly benefit from this. Without the support of the Foundation, we couldn't have done a lot of the things we have been able to do. The Foundation has been essential in meeting and exceeding the students' needs."

OCC Assistant Director of Cosmetology Diana Emmons talks to high school students attending the Career Fair during the Transition Expo.

OCC hosts Transition Expo for area high school students

Students from 12 area high schools recently attended a Transition Expo at Olney Central College.

OCC Learning Skills Center Director Donita Kaare said the event focused on helping sophomores, juniors and seniors with disabilities transition from high school to college.

About 150 students and staff attended the program, which provided information on a variety of topics ranging from how to file for financial aid to the skills necessary for postsecondary education or to obtain a job.

Guest speaker Brent McGuire, a former police officer specializing in cyber security, discussed appropriate use of social media and steps students can take to protect themselves online.

Prior to the program, students completed a career assessment. The expo featured a career fair, which gave them the opportunity to explore a number of fields.

"The students visited the different booths and had a chance to ask questions to help them determine what career they might want to go into," Kaare said. "They learned about the salary they could make and the training they would need."

Response from the students was overwhelmingly positive Kaare said.

"We got the evaluations back and they had comments like, 'This was the best day ever.'"

Students also toured OCC and enjoyed lunch in the Student Union.

The event was sponsored by the Southeastern Illinois Transition Planning Council, which includes representatives from the Department of Rehabilitation Services, ARC Community Support Systems, Southeastern Special Education and OCC.
